About the Author of Silver Spring Township

Christine Clepper Musser grew up in Monroe Township, Cumberland County. In 1986, she, her husband and children moved to Silver Spring Township. She is a graduate of Cumberland Valley High School, which is located in the township.

After raising her children, she went back to school and received her bachelor's degree in American History and Writing from Vermont College/Union Institute and Research University. She was delighted to have the opportunity to compile photos of the history of Silver Spring Township.

Christine is an active member of the Silver Spring Township Conservation and Preservation Committee, The Hogestown Rebuilding Committee, and Chairs the Hogestown Historical Committee.

When not pursuing the township's history she writes historical articles for an online magazine and photographs the Cumberland County landscape.

She hopes that her work on this book will bring back fond memories of days gone by and will educate current generations and future generations of the unique history in the area in which they live.

What lasting impact do you hope your book will leave?

The lasting impact I hope the book will leave is that current residents see the pride that the former residents had in the area and that preserving its history is important for future generations.
